Dorry Wood is notorious in Schuyler Point. Her antagonism plagues Marya Brock from the day they meet. When Dorry finds out that Marya is the new reporter, it gets worse. Five years ago, the town paper led the charge in branding Dorry a pariah for being a lesbian and accused her of being complicit in her lover's death. Peace might have finally been possible, but Dorry's brother-in-law's body is discovered on Marya's front lawn. Under equal suspicion they both know that the only ones who will help them is themselves, and with hostilities set aside they are confronted with the other feelings that smoulder below the surface.

When she meets the talented and sophisticated Rachel Cummings, Jess is glad she stayed at home. Rachel is looking forward to her remote retreat, bitter and wounded from a brutal break-up. She is hoping for renewal before returning to her busy life, but the far too attractive Jess is on every horizon.
